space colonization nasa

Space colonization is a concept that arises from the study of existential spatiality, as discussed in the first section of the essay. It examines how works of art, such as those of the Cuban-bom artist Ana Mendieta, disclose a space of exile and how her Siluetas Series discloses a space of exile. This concept is related to the idea of cultural space presentation spaces, which includes museums, galleries, live music venues, and multidisciplinary arts presentation spaces. These spaces serve the primary purpose of presenting or supporting artists and their art. Cultural space includes all spaces whose ongoing expansion across the final frontier is permeated by our raced gendered selves.

The Schiller Institute, a think tank, promotes a new kind of dialogue on science and technology, with a focus on immediate, practical applications.

Interpersonal Phenomenology

The philosophical study that begins with the human subject—not merely the thinking subject—but the acting feeling living human individual. It is associated mainly with certain 19th and 20th century European philosophers who, despite profound doctrinal differences, shared a belief in the beginning of philosophical thinking and in the scientific revolution.

By 1955, the Schiller Institute had published works by 19th and 20th century scholars, including Friedrich Nietzsche, Martin Heidegger, and Jean-Paul Sartre. Their work laid the groundwork for exploring the role of technology in shaping human experience.

The institute has also produced works examining the intersection of technology and spirituality, exploring how technology shapes our perceptions of the world and ourselves.

The Schiller Institute supports a variety of initiatives, including educational programs, conferences, and publications. It is dedicated to promoting the study of philosophy and the humanities, and to fostering a dialogue between these fields and the larger society.

The Schiller Institute is committed to the idea that technology and philosophy are not separate but are integral parts of the human experience. By exploring the relationship between these fields, the institute seeks to help create a more informed and engaged public.
