Sixth Grade Sugar Babies Discussion Questions

The sugar babies study was designed to assess whether treatment with dextrose gel is more effective than feeding alone at reversing neonatal hypoglycaemia in at-risk babies, e.g., from pregnancies complicated by maternal diabetes, preterm birth, and low birthweight. Our sixth-grade sugar babies, Eve Outlaw, Jim Randall, S. Wall, Fenner, Carol River, Ran Wild, and Cherry Lynne, set out to study the effects of early feedings on glucose homeostasis.

Objectives:

1. Do early feedings affect glucose homeostasis?
2. What are the challenges in managing neonatal hypoglycemia?
3. How do prophylactic treatment studies influence our understanding of neonatal hypoglycemia?
4. Discuss the relationship between hypoglycemia and neurodevelopmental outcomes.
5. Investigate the influence of glycemic status and hypocapnia on outcomes in HIE.

Eve Bunting was born Anne Evelyn Bolton in 1928 to a Protestant family in Northern Ireland. Growing up in Northern Ireland, Bunting had many first-hand encounters with the Protestant Catholic wars, which are all too common in that area. In 1958 when she was 30 and a mother of three, Bunting decided that the religious wars were too much to handle so she and her family moved to the United States.
