Exodus II Let My People Go

let my people go, the ten commandments
1 Mose rescues his people with a little divine legerdemain by parting the seas. Later Moses is again

Moshe said to Akhenaton II: "let my people go!" Akhenaton II, the Egyptian pharaoh of the eighteenth dynasty in the recent Ridley Scott film Exodus.

But this is the will of the Lord: if you refuse to let my people go, there will be ten plagues. Moses struck the water in Egypt with his rod and all the waters turn red with blood. The pharaoh's magicians were able to do the same thing, and so Ramses refused to let them go. The 4-hour Ten Commandments movie we have all seen a hundred times has many errors. One of them is that the pharaoh from whom Moses fled to Midian is the same pharaoh to whom Moses said forty years later: "let my people go." In fact, they were two different pharaohs.

Let my people go! The promise of a land as an everlasting possession note what you learn regarding the land, and the Lord spoke to Moses: "Go to Pharaoh and tell him thus: "Thus said the Lord, "let my people go that they may serve me." It is important to gird up thy loins and arise and speak unto them all that I command thee. Be not dismayed at their faces lest I confound thee before them. Then the Lord said to Moses: "Go in to Pharaoh and tell him thus: "Thus said the Lord, "let my people go that they may serve me."
