Sample charting for nurses for admission of patient to ward in from emergency room via stretcher unconscious and incoherent accompanied by sample charting for nurses during or case sample charting for nurses for admission of patient June 2, 2007. A blank nursing note template resembles a lined paper and is used to record patient charts. It doesn’t contain much data other than the patient’s name, age, date of admission, and notes recorded by the nurse for documentation. The objective of treatment and updates on the patient’s condition are recorded daily, though nurses may fill up many forms in each working day. The most integral part of the nurse’s responsibility is the charting. Purpose of charting is a permanent record of patients’ information, tracks the progress of the patient’s condition during the hospitalization as well as the status upon discharge. This type of documentation will also require two nurse documentation where another nurse will have to document in the chart verifying the previous charting is correct. Critics of the new rules say that they take away from actual patient care and it forces nurses to be transcriptionists instead of care providers. Example of a complete history and physical write up for patient name, unit, no location, informant, patient who is reliable, and old CPMC chart chief complaint. This is the 3rd CPMC admission for this 83 year-old woman with a long history of hypertension who presented with the chief complaint of substernal toothache like chest pain of 12 hours, providing excellent patient care is the most important aspect of nursing. Moreover, taking credit for the care given is also an important responsibility. Most nurses hate the paperwork more than any other aspect of their job but it’s critical that it be done and done well as with every aspect of quality patient care charting should be exceptional. It should never be taken lightly.
