1. When mentors and mentorees begin their journey together, one of the big topics of discussion involves mentoring goals.
2. But what is a mentoring goal? And what are some good examples of mentoring goals?

Mentoring is a relationship between two people with the goal of professional and personal development. The mentor is usually an experienced individual who shares knowledge, experience, and advice with a less experienced person or mentee.

Mentors become trusted advisers and role models. People who have been there and done that can help make the goal setting process less subjective and ensure that all parties involved have the same expectations.

The real aim of this method is to define who, what, where, when, and why so that there is no room for ambiguity or misunderstanding of the end result.

Remember that the following are a few examples of some smart goals you can set in the workplace:

1. Outlining how they meet the above criteria.
2. It takes time and good conversation to move mentees from the broad goals they bring into the relationship to smarter, specific, measurable, action-oriented, realistic, and timely goals.
